Michael Krach is a healthcare executive with 30 plus years of industry experience. Over half of that experience lies in the managed healthcare / health benefits sector where he has held leadership positions in business development, operations management, marketing administration and benefits consulting.

Mike joined The Alliance, a not-for-profit employer healthcare cooperative that moves health care forward by controlling costs, improving quality and engaging individuals in their health in April 2018.

By taking advantage of four key drivers, empowered employers can reduce their health care spend and achieve improved care for their employees and family members. This presentation will discuss what high-value healthcare is and the 4-levers employers can deploy to achieve it.
